

THE LAST SLICE

by Priyadharshini S - 231701040

Script

Duration: approximately 2 min 8 sec

Location: Pizza restaurant

Main characters: Three friends - two girls and one boy

Core idea: The story follows three friends who visit a pizza restaurant. What begins as a casual discussion about sharing pizza turns into a playful competition over the last slice, only for the slice to ultimately end up with a completely unexpected person.

SCENE 1 — ENTERING THE RESTAURANT

Shot 1 - Establishing shot

The film opens with a wide view of the pizza restaurant, establishing the setting. The three friends enter the restaurant together and move toward their table.

Shot 2 - Friends reach the table

The three friends arrive at the seating area and take their places around the table. The atmosphere is casual and friendly.

Shot 3 - Initial discussion at the table

Once seated, the friends begin discussing the pizza they are going to order. They talk about how a regular pizza will have several slices and immediately focus on the question of who will get the final slice.

Shot 4 - Everyone wants the last slice

The discussion becomes a playful argument because all three friends want the last slice for themselves. They discuss how they should decide who gets it.

Shot 5 - The boy postpones the decision

The boy suggests that the two girls should go and place the order first. He tells them that they can decide who gets the last slice after the pizza arrives, temporarily putting the argument on hold.

SCENE 2 — ON THE WAY TO ORDER

Shot 6 - The two girls leave the table

The two girls get up and walk toward the counter to place the order while the boy remains at the table.

Shot 7 - The girls' secret plan

While walking to the counter, one girl jokingly suggests that they should leave the boy behind and eat the last slice themselves. The other girl dismisses the idea and tells her to stop being silly.

Shot 8 - Ordering at the counter

The girls reach the counter and place the pizza order. The camera shows the ordering area and restaurant surroundings.

SCENE 3 — THE PIZZA ARRIVES

Shot 9 - Pizza is brought to the table

The ordered pizza is carried from the counter toward the friends' table.

Shot 10 - Pizza reveal

A close-up focuses on the freshly served pizza as it is placed on the table.

Shot 11 - Pizza is divided

The pizza is cut and separated into individual slices. Each friend gets one slice, while one final slice remains.

Shot 12 - The final slice

The camera emphasizes the remaining slice. The friends now face the exact problem they discussed at the beginning: one slice remains and everyone wants it.

SCENE 4 — ROCK-PAPER-SCISSORS

Shot 13 - Deciding the winner

The friends decide to settle the matter through a game of rock-paper-scissors. The winner will receive the final slice.

Shot 14 - Preparing to play

The three friends position themselves around the table and prepare for the game. The last slice remains visible as the prize.

Shot 15 - The game begins

The friends play rock-paper-scissors and react to each round while trying to determine the winner.

Shot 16 - The game continues

The competition continues as the friends try to win the final slice.

Shot 17 - One girl loses patience

One girl becomes impatient and tries to take the last slice herself. The boy prevents her from taking it and keeps the slice beside the table so that the game can continue.

Shot 18 - They continue playing

The friends return to the game and continue their conversation while the last slice is kept aside.

Shot 19 - They become distracted

As the friends continue talking and playing, their attention gradually shifts away from the slice. This creates the opportunity for the unexpected twist.

SCENE 5 — THE UNEXPECTED TWIST

Shot 20 - The friends are distracted

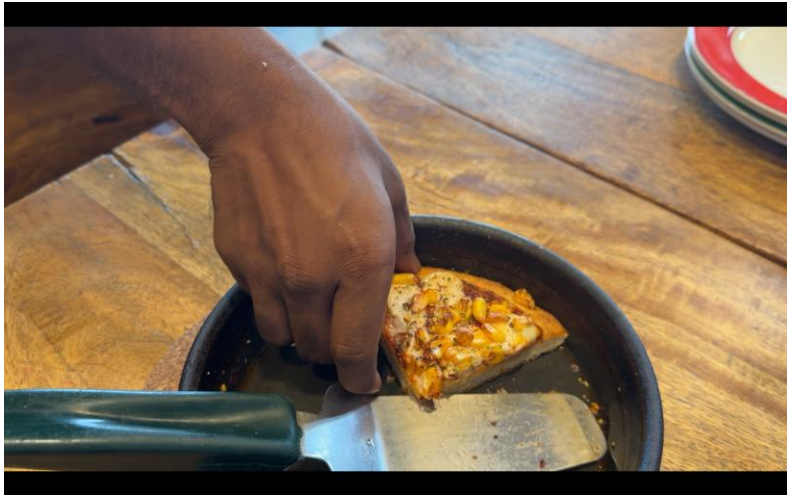

The friends remain engaged in their conversation while the last slice is left unattended.

Shot 21 - A random person approaches

An unrelated person comes near the table and notices the unattended slice.

Shot 22 - The random person takes the slice

The random person casually takes and eats the last slice, completely outside the friends' competition.

Shot 23 - The friends do not realize it

The friends continue their interaction without immediately noticing that the slice has been taken.

SCENE 6 — THE SLICE IS GONE

Shot 24 - One girl reaches for the slice

One of the girls finally decides to take the last slice and reaches toward the place where it was kept.

Shot 25 - Empty space

She discovers that there is no slice left. The pizza has disappeared.

Shot 26 - Realization

The friends realize that while they were busy deciding who deserved the final slice, someone else simply took it.

Shot 27 - Final reaction

The final reaction emphasizes the irony: all three friends fought and planned over the last slice, but none of them got it.

SCENE 7 — ENDING

Shot 28 - Closing visual

The story closes on the humorous idea that the outcome was never in the friends' control. The last slice had its own fate.

Shot 29 - Final title card

The film transitions to the final title card. The title appears as “THE LAST SLICE”, followed by “Written and Directed by Priyadharshini S.”

Shot 30 - Final message / theme

The ending conveys the idea that some things are destined to reach a particular person and cannot be changed no matter how much we try to control them. In this story, the last slice was ultimately meant for a random person rather than any of the three friends.

OVERALL STORY IN BRIEF

Three friends enter a pizza restaurant and sit together. They discuss the number of slices in a regular pizza and immediately focus on who will get the last slice. Since everyone wants it, they postpone the decision and send the two girls to order the pizza. On their way to the counter, one girl jokingly suggests leaving the boy behind so the girls can eat the last slice, but the other tells her to stop. They place the order and bring the pizza back to the table. Each friend takes one slice, leaving one final slice. To decide who gets it, they agree to play rock-paper-scissors. During the game, one girl becomes impatient and tries to take the slice, but the boy keeps it beside the table. The friends continue talking and playing, unaware that a random person eventually comes along and eats the unattended slice. When one of the girls finally reaches for it, she finds that it is gone. The story ends with the realization that all their arguments and planning could not change the outcome—the last slice had its own fate. The final title card reads “THE LAST SLICE,” followed by “Written and Directed by Priyadharshini S.”

ENDING IDEA

The comedy comes from the contrast between the friends' serious effort to decide who deserves the last slice and the completely unexpected outcome. Their attempts to control the situation fail, suggesting the simple idea that some things are destined to happen in a particular way and cannot be changed.
